The History Jensen Beach Fine Art & Craft Show

In 1966, local art patron and Chamber of Commerce board member, Dr. Richard Pennick, wanted to showcase local artists by featuring them in a local art show. With the help of the Chamber and local art advocates, they joined together to make it happen. The first Festival of the Arts was held on the Jensen Beach Causeway in March during the height of the tourist season. The festival was a juried show and awarded cash prizes. The event successfully continued until 1988.

The Festival of the Arts name was changed to the Sunshine State Art & Craft Show in March 1989. The show continued to be held in March. For the first time, the show invited fine crafters to participate and display their hand-crafted artwork including glass, photography, mixed media, textiles, jewelry and much more. The show was also held on the Jensen Beach Causeway. A highlight of the Sunshine State Art & Craft Show was the flying of the Mount Rushmore American Flag over the event in 1991.

The Sunshine State Art & Craft Show ended in 1994. For the remainder of that decade, and until the Frank A. Wacha, Sr. Bridge construction on the Jensen Beach Causeway was completed in 2006, the Jensen Beach Art League organized several local art shows. In the early 2000's, a South Florida promotion company held an art show on Ricou Terrace in downtown Jensen Beach.

Jensen Beach Chamber of Commerce, President CEO, Ronald Rose felt there was a need for the return of an authentic art show to downtown Jensen Beach. The Jensen Beach Fine Art & Craft Show first began in January 2007, officially kicking off the local art show season.

Rose credits several artists from the Sebastian Riverfront Fine Art & Music Festival in helping launch the rebirth of an annual Jensen Beach outdoor fine art event.
